Among all the authors on the Hezbollah, you are the deepest and most complex one. I am enjoying reading you a lot and find that finally, serious and long-lasting academic work is being done on the party.

VICTORIA FONTAN
Associate Professor, University for Peace.

Hezbollah’s identity construction is an intelligent contribution to the academic debate on the dynamics of change in the political identity of Islamist movements; a process which is far from being concluded. Alagha’s reliance on a robust empirical basis and his analysis also of the most recent events make this study a valuable addition to the literature on the subject.

FILIPPO DIONIGI
London School of Economics and Political Science, UK.
International Affairs 87.3 (September 2011): 1262-1264.

Alagha offers a nuanced and sophisticated look at how Hezbollah’s ideology and political tactics have evolved. His work sheds light on an important, but to Western audiences mysterious and opaque, political force in Lebanon.

DANIEL BYMAN
Director of Georgetown’s Security Studies Program and the Center for Peace and Security Studies and Professor at the School of Foreign Service.

JOSEPH ALAGHA is Professor of Political Science at Haigazian University. He is the author of Hezbollah’s Identity Construction (2011), Hezbollah’s Documents (2011), and The Shifts in Hezbollah’s Ideology (2006), all published by Amsterdam University Press. Alagha is a prolific writer on Islamic movements and the democratization and liberalization processes in the Middle East and North Africa.